Since 1994, customers at the Blue Marlin have gathered to enjoy one of America's great traditional cuisines, the delicious and inventive fare of the Low Country.

Stretching from Savannah to the South, and Georgetown to the North, the Low Country is resplendent with the bounties of the sea and coastal marshlands. Succulent shrimp, oysters, crabs, crawfish and catfish abound. Lush greens, corn, rice, and ripe red tomatoes are plentiful. Low Country cuisine brings all of this food together in a sumptuous array of unique and distinctive dishes.

Legend holds that the wealthy English, German, and French plantation owners along the Carolina and Georgia coasts preferred a blander European cuisine, but while they dined in all their elegance, the scent of Low Country flavors coming out of the back kitchens could not be ignored. This simple fare, created from what the good earth provided, is still a hallmark of the Southern kitchen some three hundred years later. We are proud to bring it to you at the Blue Marlin. As you enjoy our signature dishes, you'll experience the finest blend of African, West Indian and Caribbean flavors.

In 2007, Blue Marlin had the honor of presenting a taste of the South Carolina Low Country at the prestigious James Beard House in New York City. In 2009 Blue Marlin was invited to prepare and serve a Taste of South Carolina to Senators in the U.S. Capital’s Senate Dining Room.

We hope you will enjoy our uniquely prepared South Carolina Low Country cuisine and our Southern hospitality.

Blue Marlin is proud to be a part of the Sustainable Seafood Initiative. Sustainable Seafood refers to fish that are caught or farmed with consideration for the long-term viability of individual marine species and for the oceans' ecological balance as a whole. Seafood harvested in the United States is some of the most sustainable in the world due to strict conservation regulations.

We also participate in the State of South Carolina’s Fresh on the Menu Program, in which participating chefs agree to prepare menus that include at least 25% “Certified South Carolina Grown” foods and products in season and feature the Fresh on the Menu brand.
